GLOBAL ECONOMIC IMPACT DASHBOARD: 2026 IRAN MARKET SHOCK

Energy Prices, Inflation and Market Volatility in the Post-COVID Economy | Prepared by Kimberly T Sabao

How did the 2026 Iran Market Shock affect global energy prices, inflation, fuel costs and stock market volatility?

Average Oil Price (USD)	Peak Oil Price (USD)	Average Inflation Rate (%)	Most Volatile Market Index	Highest Fuel Price Country
$94.16	$138.21	4.90%	Nikkei 225	Hong Kong

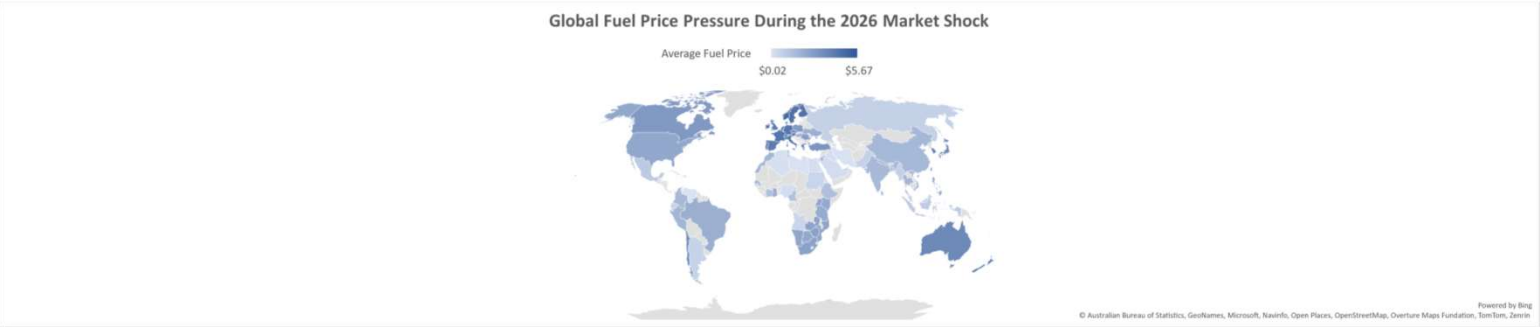

FILTERS

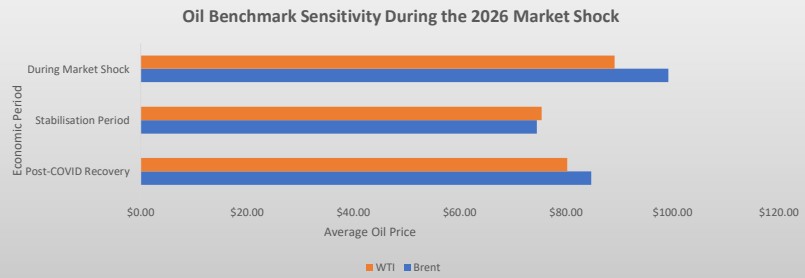

Period Category
- During Market Shock
- Post-COVID Recovery
- Stabilisation Period

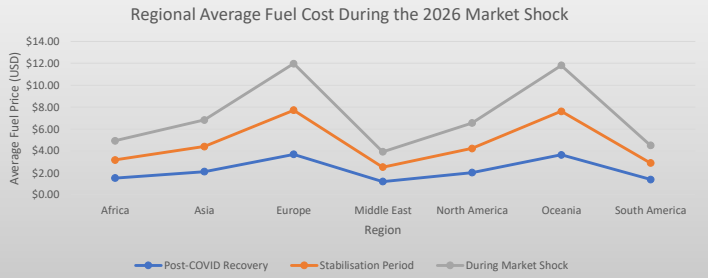

Stock Index
- DAX
- FTSE 100
- Nikkei 225
- S&P 500

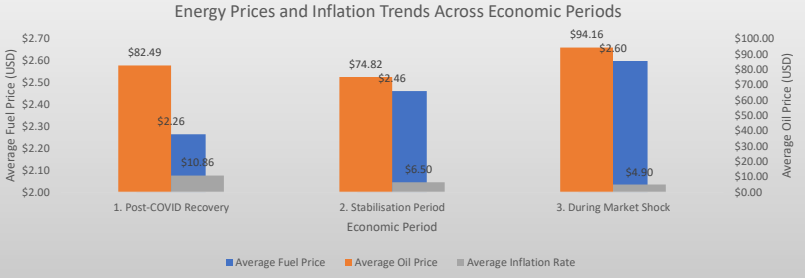

Timeline
- 2021
- 2022
- 2023
- 2024
- 2025
- 2026

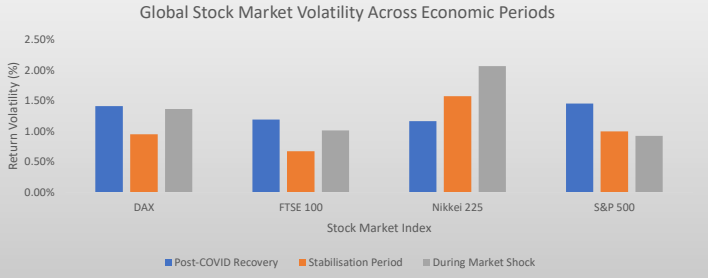

Country
- Italy
- Ivory Coast
- Japan
- Jordan
- Kenya
- Kuwait
- Lebanon
- Libya
- Malaysia

EXECUTIVE INSIGHT:
During the market shock period, higher oil prices appear to increase fuel cost pressure across regions, while stock markets show stronger volatility. The dashboard highlights how energy shocks can transmit into consumer costs and financial market uncertainty.

EXECUTIVE RECOMMENDATION:
The analysis demonstrates that geopolitical disruptions can rapidly influence oil prices, fuel costs, inflation dynamics, and financial market behaviour. To improve economic resilience, governments and businesses should diversify energy sources, strengthen strategic reserves, improve supply chain efficiency, and implement proactive risk management frameworks to mitigate the impact of future market shocks.